COUNTY TO REMOVE SNOW OFF HIGHWAY 15 ONLY, REPORT

Sufficient Money Is Not Available to Clean Other Roads

A resolution adopted by the county board of supervisors at the fall session authorized spending $5,000 for snow removal on state trunk highway 15, between the county asylum and Kaukauna, and this leaves the county without available funds for removal work on any other roads. A. G. Bruse, county highway commissioner, said Saturday.

The only latitude allowed when the report was adopted was that the county highway committee can, at its discretion, erect snow fences, thus fence is being supplied by the Northern Transportation company and it is agreed that it will be used between Kaukauna and DePue.

No effort to keep highways 26, 17, 18 or other roads open can officially be made by the county highway commission, it was pointed out.

Although the subject was under official discussion much of the morning Saturday, no solution other than to let nature take its course was arrived at by the highway department. Business men, it was pointed out, are particularly interested in devising means of keeping the highway from New London and Black Creek open and bus men also made many complaints to the commissioner.

MEMBERSHIPS TO RED CROSS OPEN

Persons Still Desiring to Aid Organization Can Do So Until Monday

Red Cross memberships will be accepted by the committee until Monday evening, according to an announcement made by Dr. M. H. Small, chairman of the Outagamie chapter of the association. Formal solicitations were closed on Tuesday, but the records of the committee were held open in order to allow extra time for those who had overlooked contributing their membership fees for the 1926 campaign.

The number of members in the county is considerably larger than last year, the chairman said, but the number received will not be announced until after the closing of the tallies. Personal canvassing of citizens and business houses was made by the committee during the campaign which opened on Armistice day, Nov. 11, and booths were established each Saturday during the campaign. Mrs. T. E. Orblison was in charge of securing directors for the booths which were stationed in the department stores and public buildings.

Members of the committee were Dr. Small, Mrs. Frances B. Grogan of Kaukauna, vice-chairman; P. M. Conkey, treasurer; Mrs. John Haug, Jr., secretary; Mrs. Gustave Keller, Sr., Mrs. James Wood, Miss Minnie Geenen, A. G. Meating and Mrs. Orblison, directors.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The low pressure, or storm area, has now moved to the maritime provinces of Canada. Meanwhile the high pressure area with its cold weather has moved to the Mississippi valley and lake region. BUILDS OWN OIL BURNER FOR HIS SHOP

Herman Potter believes in economy, and he practices it too. He has devised a homemade oil burner which will cost only a few dollars to heat his auto repair shop at 621 W. College-ave. all winter. He burns old crank case oil which he collects by the barrel from filling stations which give him the oil gratis, as they are glad to dispose of it.

The burner consists of a two gallon tank placed on a steel frame about two feet from the top of a small coal burning stove. The heat from the stove keeps the oil thin and it runs easily. At the bottom of the tank is an adjustable valve through which the oil flows into a container which stands at the top of a small pipe leading into the top of the stove. The oil passes through this tube and drips on a bed of coals below and keeps a continuous glowing fire which throws good heat. By adjusting the valve the oil drips slow or fast, as desired.

The burner meets at the Y. M. C. A. The evening service has been discontinued until we return to our own building. The mid-week prayer meeting has also been discontinued for the present. Sunday morning subject: "Efficiency." Music: Solo, Mrs. Mabel Meyer.

ORANGE OR GRAPE VIE FOR POPULAR FAVOR IN DRINKS

Public Demands First Then
Other Appleton Pop Manufacturer Finds

Orange and grape are the two flavors favored by soda water drinkers in Appleton, according to Raymond Hamm, manager of the Hamm and Son Pop factory, 622 N. Division-st. For one period of time the customers seem to favor one of these flavors and then suddenly the public taste will shift to the other and so the race for first place is nearly even, Mr. Hamm says.

Other popular flavors are lemon, peach, strawberry, lime and cherry. Ginger Ale also is in great demand. Although it may seem that the pop business would decrease materially in the winter, such is not the case, according to Mr. Hamm. The food value of soda water is becoming more generally known, through national advertising, Mr. Hamm said, and the amount of this popular drink which is consumed increases daily.

The Hamm factory has been located in Appleton for 17 years and deliveries are made to dealers within a 30 mile radius.

Cleanliness is the keynote in the bottling operations at the Hamm factory. A new laboratory was completed recently in the second story of the building and all mixing of syrups takes place here. It is modern in every aspect and has been constructed to eliminate all dirt. A bottling machine with a capacity of a case of 24 bottles a minute is used in filling the bottles. This machine mixes the syrup and the charged water and puts on a cork in one operation.

Before the bottles are filled they are sent through a washing machine where they receive 23 distinct applications of water. They are absolutely pure and clean when they emerge from the washing process. They are immediately filled with pop to prevent any dirt from entering the bottle. After the bottle has been filled they are placed in cases that have also been scoured and brushed in a large tub of boiling hot water.

In addition to mixing charged water drinks, still drinks, which are mixed with plain water, are also manufactured by the Hamm company.

SOCIAL WORK SUFFERS FROM OLD METHODS

Madison.—(AP)—Social and civic work in smaller towns and cities of Wisconsin are suffering acutely from old and inefficient methods.

The chaotic condition in relief work in the smaller cities of the state was revealed at the recent conference of Social Work, according to Aubrey W. Williams, secretary of the organization.

"Business men of the small cities," said Mr. Williams in a report issued here today, "are responsible for the social lag in their communities." He suggests that they make use of the technical counsel provided by the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work.

From his experience in Wisconsin social work, Mr. Williams says of the small towns:

"In the smaller cities principles of city planning are flagrantly violated. Cities of 7,000 families have 1,500 of them living in homes without sewer connections or running water."

"In the field of social welfare work, individuals and families are carried along on mothers' pension grants, by churches, and indiscriminate relief societies. There is no investigation into causes of dependency, and what is of more consequence, no plan or effort to place dependents on their own feet."

"Among other things it has brought out that only 7 of 12 Wisconsin cities use a unified method of raising necessary charity funds," he says. "What is more important, only 9 cities, including Milwaukee, employ case work methods in work for the relief of the poor."

RADIO BEACON STATIONS NEEDED, REPORT SAYS

Washington, D. C.—There is urgent need for additional radio beacon stations on the Great Lakes, Commissioner of Lighthouses said in his annual report prepared for submission to Congress Saturday.

The first radio beacon station on the Great Lakes was established in 1925. Eight stations have since been established, the latest at Devils Island, Wisconsin.

Putman asked Congress for additional appropriation of $34,000 for establishing aids to navigation and improving the existing aids at or near Milwaukee harbor. Work is now under way at Milwaukee on aids to navigation and approximately $152,000 has been spent. The $34,000 requested would complete the work there, bringing the total cost of project to $186,000.

"This work is of primary importance, and includes the establishment of a main light and fog signal station and radio beacon at the outer end of the north breakwater which was recently constructed, and automatic lights at the south end of the main entrance, and at the north entrance," Putman said. Putman also asked $80,000 for establishing light and fog signal at Lansing, Mich., and $90,000 for aids to navigation at the straits at Macinac. He also asked $10,000 for improvements at Two Rivers Wisconsin, and $10,000 for light station and keepers' dwellings at Manitowish.

CALMES TO ATTEND IMPLEMENT MEET

Only One Delegate from Appleton Expected to Be Present at Convention

Frank Calmes of the Calmes and Son Implement Co., probably will be the only Appleton man who will attend the twenty-first annual convention of the Wisconsin Implement Dealers association, at Milwaukee from Dec. 7 to 10.

Convention headquarters will be at the Republican Hotel, while the large annual trade exhibition will be held at the Milwaukee auditorium in Machinery hall. Many reservations are being received daily by R. Nuss, Madison, secretary, from manufacturers of farm implements desiring to reserve space for exhibition of their machinery at the convention, thus assuring the dealers of witnessing the largest display of farm machinery ever seen in this part of the country.

Nationally known men in the implement field are featured on the convention program, talking on such subjects as cost surveys, freight rates, implement dealer problems, the implement manufacturer and overhead costs.

A question box discussion of all dealer problems will be of interest to Wisconsin dealers. It will be continued after each business meeting.

While their husbands are busy with convention affairs, the ladies will be entertained. An elaborate program of bus tours, theater parties, dinners, luncheons, shopping tours, and sight-seeing tours have been arranged for them to cover the entire four days.

Officers of the association are: E. J. McGeehan, DePere, president; P. A. Genin, Belleville, vice president, and R. Nuss, Madison, secretary-treasurer.

BE CAREFUL IN PICKING YOUR TURKEY

In selecting a Holiday turkey, the buyer should be certain to ascertain the amount and quality of flesh on the body, especially on the breast, back and hips, according to advice issued by the Department of Agriculture to housewives.

Examine the bird with its back up because that is the best way to tell how plump it is, experts say. Plenty of flesh means plenty of meat for carving, and there should be a generous amount of fat to insure a moist, tender meat.

To tell the turkey's age, feel the end of the breast or keel bone and examine the spurs on the feet, the department advises. While young birds are usually the ones for roasting, any bird can be cooked in a manner that will make it tender.

CHRISTMAS SEALS SALES CAMPAIGNS CARRIED TO HOME

Citizens to Receive Packet of Anti-tuberculosis Stamps in Mail

Christmas seals were sent to Appleton citizens by the Appleton Woman's club this week and recipients will be urged to help the work of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association by the purchasing. More seals have been sent to the club this year than before, Mrs. S. C. Shannon, executive secretary said. Those who do not receive stamps through the club, or who would like more than the quota sent, may buy them at the clubhouse until Christmas day, it was said.

Last year 1,500 letters were sent and about 1,750 will be distributed this year. School children will not sell the seals again this season.

Mrs. William Nemacheck, chairman of the health department at the club, will have charge of the campaign.

Half of the proceeds from the sale will be used for local health work and the remainder will be sent to the association for use in its work with tubercular patients in the state. Plans are being made for a chest clinic under the auspices of the association in Appleton during January. The clinic will be held two or three days.

MILK PRODUCTION IS EXPECTED TO DECREASE

Milk production in Outagamie county will drop from 20 and 30 per cent, according to several farmers living near Appleton. They base their prediction on the poor corn crop which was harvested last fall. Most farmers were unable to complete filling their silos and the shortage of silage will be seriously felt, it is believed. Some farmers did not cut any silage.

No less than $1 worth of the stamps will be sent in any letter, and the public has been asked to buy as many as possible. Mills, banks and other business houses will be visited by the committee.

The association and the club have asked that the stamps be used as well as purchased. All mail, including letters and packages, sent from now to Christmas time should carry these bright stamps as propaganda work for the association, the committee believes.

In the old days most any dessert would do—nowadays it's ENZO JELLY.

MEASLES RAMPANT BECAUSE PARENTS MOCK HEALTH LAW

City Health Officer Reports
Difficulties in Enforcing Statutes

Great difficulty is being experienced in getting parents to observe the quarantine law in Appleton, according to Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer. Mr. Sanders declares that many mothers cause the spread of contagious diseases, especially measles, by not keeping the afflicted children at home. Fourteen new cases were reported Thursday and Friday.

Unless there is more attention paid to the regulations of quarantine, it will be necessary to enforce these laws by applying the full penalty to the offenders, Mr. Sanders announced. Many mothers keep their children from school when they are told to do so, but they allow these children to run errands and to mingle with other boys and girls after school hours. This aids in spreading the disease. Others tear off placards before they are given permission to do so. The cards are to be left on the house for two weeks. They are not to be removed by anyone except the health officer, according to the statutes.

There are, perhaps, 30 cases of measles in the city at present, according to Mr. Sanders, and a small number of cases of whooping cough and chickenpox. There are no cases of diphtheria, smallpox or scarlet fever and the situation is not considered serious at present. If parents will follow instructions and obey the law to the letter contagion in Appleton will soon vanish, the health officer believes.

SANITATION WOULD OFFER PANACEA TO COUNTLESS DEATHS

Proper Ventilation of Lavatories Advocated by Health Leaders

Sanitation is the conqueror of preventable diseases and is stronger than all the nations of the world. It saves thousands of lives each year and adds years to the lives of thousands, according to the United States Public Health bureau report. To assist in obtaining the best sanitation the Sani-Vent has been invented and is being manufactured and sold by the Sanitary Appliance company of Neenah.

This Sani-Vent is known as the Cyclone Water Closet Ventilator and it supplies the proper ventilation in toilet rooms. Improper ventilation is often responsible for ill-health and the annual death of thousands of persons from diseases that have their origin in the gases escaping from the water closet, according to health.

Poof air from improper ventilation is the breath of death. While poor food is causing one death, improper ventilation is reaping a harvest of a thousand deaths, says Dr. Evans, Commissioner of Health of Chicago. Other health authorities are unanimous in laying the cause for many deaths at the door of improper ventilation.

The Cyclone prevents the effluvia from excrement, and all bad odors escaping from the closet to the room, and carries them directly to the open air above the house top. It does away with the necessity for open windows in a water closet apartment, thus preventing the freezing of water pipes. It keeps the closet seat dry by constant circulation of air beneath it and prevents corrosion of varnish.

It can be applied to any ordinary water closet now in use or about to be installed, without change or alteration of any part. There is no machinery to get out of order and no parts to wear out. It strengthens every seat to which it is applied and it lasts as long as the closet.

The Sani-Vent is recommended by physicians, architects, plumbers and thousands of delighted users. It is installed at a reasonable rate and does not cost one penny for upkeep. Those people who are having a new home built should demand that the Sani-Vent be included in the original plan. It is guaranteed for one year with the purchase price refundable any time within that period if the user is not satisfied.

WHAT ENGLAND SMOKES AS TOBACCO SUBSTITUTE

London, (AP)—Although millions of pounds of American tobacco are smoked in England every year and an increasing quantity grown in British Dominions consumed of late years, there is a steady use of "substitutes" in various parts of England, say botanists.

In Derbyshire the local inhabitants of rural district use a "leaf mixture" made from cabbage lettuce which are allowed to grow very large before being gathered, dried and "cured" for smoking.

In Wiltshire, substitutes are made from dried watercress which undergoes a simple curing with plenty of rum in the process. This is said to make an excellent pipe or cigarette tobacco.

Devonshire produces a good local mixture made principally of dried dandelion leaves, which are so dried and cured as to retain all their flavor.

Somerset folk remote districts, rely on the sunflower to provide tobacco substitute. The big leaves are carefully dried and cured with rum, and in some cases can be rolled into a cheroot.

All these local productions are said to be cool smoking and leave no "herby" taste in the mouth.

CHICAGO'S ONLY RIALTO BOOKSHOP SOON TO PASS

Chicago, (AP)—Chicago's only rialto bookshop soon will be no more. This house of literature in a modest store on Randolph-st., the theatrical white way, must move when its lease expires.

Actors and actresses make up a fair proportion of its customers. Many of them are great readers, and not a few collectors to whom a first edition, a fine binding or a rare volume appeals just second to a first night.

There's Ernest Hiatt, for instance. Hiatt is a vaudevillian who has traveled from one end of the country to the other many times. Whenever he strikes a town, the book store is one of the first places he looks up. Hiatt has been collecting rare and valuable books and first editions of rare authors for years. He can not carry his collections with him, so he sends them back to his sister's home in Columbus, Ohio.

THIS EDITOR WRITES NEW HEADS IN RHYME

Webster, S. D., (AP)—There is an editor in Webster who has connived with the muses. Will A. Wells, of the Journal, writes his heads in rhyme. For all ordinary stories, Mr. Wells uses a rhyming head of three decks—a single cross-line, followed by two pyramidal banks. Where a head in verse is not appropriate, Editor Wells resorts to a prose caption which flows in continuous thought.

Babson Optimistic Over American Money Market

Babson Park, Mass.—Roger W. Babson was interviewed on the money situation and is apparently very optimistic as to the outlook. He feels that there is more idle money in this country today than there has been for a generation even though a tremendous number of bond and stock issues have recently been sold. He looks for fairly easy money rates throughout the winter unless some unusual disturbance should happen.

BANKING STATISTICS
"The figures published by the Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Reserve banks and other sources show that a vast amount of money is at present in this country. Moreover, owing to our large amount of gold, and the fact that credit is based upon gold, we have a tremendous amount of credit. When the total money available and the total credit available are considered we have a situation which is very powerful. Unless some catastrophe happens easy money with normal interest rates should continue for some time. These interesting figures show the great increase in the stock of money in the United States. 1905 2.9 Billion Dollars. 1910 3.4 Billion Dollars. 1915 4.9 Billion Dollars. 1920 7.9 Billion Dollars. 1925 8.2 Billion Dollars. 1926 8.4 Billion Dollars.

"Not only has this country a large amount of liquid funds and an almost unlimited credit, but events now happening are favorable rather than unfavorable to the continued ease in money rates. Even the vast security issues which have been offered during the past did not use up any money per se.

These securities are sold largely to refund floating debt and other securities. The only weakness in the situation is that they have changed liquid funds into fixed funds or liquid investments into permanent investments. There is no money per se destroyed, but this money merely changes from the hands of the investor to the bank or corporation. In any practice we must have a certain balance of liquid and invested funds and credits and to have this relationship get out of balance is a source of danger. However, there is no loss in money per se unless it is sent out of the country.

"As commodity prices decrease, credit which has the tendency of keeping money rates down, correspondingly decreases. For instance, when cotton was 35 cent a pound, a mill was obliged to borrow $3,500,000 to buy 1,000,000 pounds. To day with cotton around 13 cent a pound the same mill would be obliged to borrow less than half this amount to buy the same amount of cotton. This applies in a general way to all commodities, if commodity prices are going to continue gradually work lower, as most economists believe this should tend to keep down interest rates.

EFFECT OF PROHIBITION
"However much prohibition may be blamed for foolishness among certain of the young people and the newly rich of today, statistics clearly show that prohibition has been a great factor in bringing about the present prosperity. Of course, the money heretofore spent for drink was not destroyed, it merely went from the hands of the brewer; but productive lives were destroyed and handicapped, which in turn greatly reduced the productivity of the nation. Prohibition has resulted in increasing the working power of the wage worker and has been a great factor in bringing about higher wages.

Moreover, money received, instead of being employed uselessly for hiring labor to manufacture whiskey and beer, has been used in hiring labor to build houses, make clothes and other things that are worthwhile.

A great portion of this money has gone into savings banks which money has been a great factor in keeping rates low. Had it not been for prohibition the present growth in the industrial business would have been impossible. It was prohibition which enabled wage workers to establish credits. Without prohibition these credits could not have been established; the goods purchased could never have been manufactured and the prosperity which we now enjoy would not exist. Prohibition has not only made credit more worth while, but it has swelled the credit possibilities of our people.

GOVERNMENT ECONOMY
"Whether Republicans or Democrats, we must give due credit to President Coolidge for his campaign of economy which has directly and indirectly resulted in thrift. Not only has the government greatly reduced its own expenses, but it has set an example of thrift and efficiency which has benefited everyone down the line. Men and women who were formerly employed in non-productive government work are now usefully employed in raising and manufacturing commodities. All these efforts in the line of economy tend to increase our present money supply and credit possibilities.

"The present plan of the Administration to give tax payers a 12 1/2 per cent rebate next year is very significant. Unless the public and private financial affairs are in good condition the government would never think of making such a refund. Probably in addition to this refund there will be a revision of the tax law in 1928 as both Democrats and Republicans wish to get credit for reducing taxes. All of these movements should tend to help the money situation.

"The only weakness in the situation is that Europe may have something financially which would upset the world. Europe is far from settled. Europe is honeycombed with jealousies. If one of the great powers of Europe should become unsettled, it would be a severe blow to us all. Ultimately of course, we must help Europe because in the end we can only prosper as Europe prospers, but

PRINCE HENRY CRAMS FOR CAPTAINCY IN OWN RIGHT

Lodon, (AP)—Prince Henry, the king's third son, does not have much time for fox hunting these days as he has been "cramping" for an army examination which will make him a captain.

The prince, who has the distinction of being the tallest member of the royal family, has a dislike for anything suggesting courtesy promotion and has made up his mind to earn his stars in the ordinary way, or not accept them at all. The prince at present is a subaltern in the Tenth Hussars and at cavalry manoeuvres he looks after his own mounts, even currying and rubbing them down after a severe test in the field.

BOK BUILDING NATURAL BIRD PARK IN FLORIDA

Lake Wales, Fla., (AP)—A natural park, where wild life and plants of Florida will be preserved, is being built near here by Edward W. Bok, journalist and author, who maintains a winter home in the suburbs of this city.

One artificial lake already has been constructed and a second one is planned. These lakes will harbor the flock from South America, as well as a number of nightingales imported from England. Both birds were native of Florida.

The park, covering 26 acres will be known as Mountain Lake Bird Reservation. Mr. Bok has made plans for the erection on the top of the mountain of a mountain of a carillon that will contain 67 bells.

EUROPEAN HOTEL MEN RENEW ANTI-TIP PLAN

Budapest, (AP)—The abolition of tipping is again to be sought by European hotel managers. The new plan, proposed by Swiss delegates and adopted after long debate, proposes the substitution of a service charge on the length of the guest's stay and the amount of attention he has received.

The Budapest conference was attended by hotel keepers from every country of Europe.

LUMBER BUSINESS DECLINE IS SMALL

Mills Entering Winter Season With Smaller Stocks Than Last Year

In its review of the lumber trade situation, the American Lumberman, Chicago, says:

Orders booked by 300 of the principal softwood mills during the week ended Nov. 13 amounted to 81 per cent of their production, and shipments amounted to 93 per cent of the production, the movement thus showing a decline that for the season is rather small. At this time last year the mills had shipped only 98 per cent of their cut to date, whereas this year the shipments had amounted to 101 per cent of the cut, so that they are entering the winter with smaller stocks than last year's.

Bad fall weather prevented the development of the expected large farm demand, so for this reason country retailers have refrained from stocking up, and by general report their assortments are small. City building has continued in large volume despite weather handicaps, permits issued on October being only 2 per cent less than for October of last year, and showing a 27 per cent increase over those for September this year.

The west coast mills have been operating very actively, but business has been slowing down, and some of the large fir operators have reduced their output, and it is believed that there will soon be decided general curtailment. Middle west trade is seasonably tapering off, and while there has been until recently good retail trade in the east, cold weather is reducing it.

Wholesalers in the east tend to hold off buying because of high intercoastal freight rates. California is a good market for fir, but tends to become over-supplied. Coast mills have not been able to advance prices to take care of increased log quotations and continued operation is unprofitable. Lower prices are unlikely. Inland Empire and California pines business is seasonably declining, but curtailment of output is beginning in some regions, while mill stocks are rather low, so that prices will probably remain steady.

Southern pine trade has been good. Large mills have been operating more actively, their cut for the week was in excess of orders, but small mills are reducing their production, so that total output is less. The better grades turned out by large mills are firm, though occasional concessions are reported, but small mill items are weak and have declined. Trade in North Carolina shortleaf and Georgia reders is slow. Eastern spruce is dull and quotations tend to soften.

The hardwood mills have been booking a large volume of business, which is in excess of total production, but it is said that orders are being accepted at lower prices. Furniture demand is still fairly good, but automobile buying is decreasing as factory schedules are curtailed over the year end, and building trades demand is feeling the effects of colder weather.

PARISIANS REVIVING OLD 'ROUGE CONCERTS'

Paris, (AP)—The "Rougeconcerts" have been revived in the Latin Quarter after ten years' interruption and there is joy among the longhaired men and short haired women who keep the flame of intellect bright in the purlieus of the Boulevard Montparnasse.

Established thirty years ago, the Rouge orchestra—small but select—until laid low by the war, dispensed boiled down masterpieces and refreshments in return for the modest sum of 1.25 francs. In new premises along the rue d'Odessa in the heart of where Whistler sprang to fame, the price has been raised to ten francs.

Many artists now famous won his spurs on the little low platform. Jacques Thibaud, the violinist, was discovered there by Edward Colonne, the eminent conductor, and launched on his brilliant career.

WAR AGAINST GANGSTERS

Marion, Ill., (AP)—Williamson Co. scene of numerous gang wars, Klan and anti-Klan strife and bootlegger's battles boasts marksmen even among her professional and business men.

The banks in the county, realizing the danger of daylight holdups, have organized what they term "town guards." The group is composed of prominent business and professional men whose stores or offices are near or overlook the bank buildings. Each of the "guards" keeps a load of high-power rifle secreted in his place of business and he knows how to use it in the event of an attempted robbery.

CITY NOISES AFFECTING LIFE AND HEALTH, CLAIM

Chicago, (AP)—If the rattle, bang and roar of the city could be eliminated, the average life of its residents would be prolonged about seven years, declares Chicago's commissioner of health, Dr. Herman N. Banderson. Individual and community efficiency would at the same time be materially increased.

"Noise is always a tax on nerves," says the commissioner who has been attempting to lessen the street noises of Chicago. "It causes almost as much wear and tear as the exertion one puts forth in the performance of daily work."

"Although one can and does get accustomed to noises which are a part of one's daily life, yet unusual and unnecessary noise tends to upset the nerves and cause annoyance. Constant din may also affect the brain in such a way as to cause dizziness, giddiness and nausea in some persons."

"AROUND-CLOCK" PARTY POPULAR WITH BRITISH

London, (AP)—A feature of the autumn season is "round-the-clock" parties for elderly persons, many of whom are grand-parents. Bridge parties which begin in the afternoon and terminate the next day and chain dances wherein a group of elderly persons "do" the homes of their friends and end up at the starting point for breakfast about 5 o'clock the next morning, are the favorite modes of expression.

"It is not the play which attracts these elderly folk, but the prizes," said one professional bridge tournament organizer. "Some of them find young people boring and languid and they prefer their social functions to be exclusively for those of their own age."

London, (AP)—Family groups are a thing of the past in British photographs galleries. Mother, father and all the children no longer present themselves to be lined up in angular awkwardness before the camera. Neither do wedding parties pose in their entirety any more.

Snapshots of an informal character have replaced the old group's professional photographers were formerly called upon to make, and the gallery work is now almost entirely photographs of individuals.

NOCTURNE CELEBRATES SUFFERINGS OF MAN

Paris, (AP)—The "soul-state" of himself and his fellow "pollus" is the theme of a nocturne for orchestra entitled "Night Falls in the Trenches," which hie French composer Maurice Imbert has just brought out.

"Man learns in suffering what he celebrates in song," says M. Imbert. Scored principally for strings and woodwind the piece breathes soft melancholy and deep poetic feeling. It is being played with unvarying success at the "Rouge concerts" in the Latin Quarter.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, and ERIC WATERS, senior, are rivals for the favor of JUDITH MARTIN, a young teacher.

Judith arouses the wrath of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN by defending Eric against the accusation of bootlegging poison liquor from which two students have died.

MYRA ALDRICH, in love with Eric, is jealous of Judith. The dean plans to have Judith dismissed. Mrs. Brown is determined to prevent her husband from persecuting Judith, who has befriended her.

Dr. Dorn is puzzled because he has learned that Judith lives in the room from which he had seen Eric climbing down the terris, weeks ago. He does not question Judith and she has no chance to explain that he had climbed to ask her to unlock the door for Myra, who had stayed out too late.

The professor avoids Judith thenceforth. Mrs. Timothy Brown waits in the corridor outside Judith's classroom, to tell her that "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, has learned of a trip to the city on which Mrs. Brown met her lover and is demanding blackmail.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Judith drew Mrs. Brown with her down the hall. They went into the art museum, where interminable rows of plaster casts stood starkly against black hangings.

"Now tell me all about it. Are you sure Shea knows anything? He might be bluffing."

Mrs. Brown shook her head miserably. "I thought so too," she said. "So I tried bluffing it out, at first. Ordered him from the place. But he only laughed his horrible laugh and stood reared back, with his hands in his pockets, and a smear of tobacco juice across his chin." She stammered.

"Go on," said Judith, mercilessly. "What did he say?"

Mrs. Brown stammered herself with an effort. "He just laughed a minute. Then he said, 'Better fork over the dough. It's easier in the wrong run.'"

"Then I looked at him, and I knew he did know, and I remembered being afraid someone would hear us talking in the College."

"While I was thinking, he stepped closer and said, 'In case you don't understand how I got the dope on you—I'm part owner of the College Inn. You may remember a conversation there with a certain young lady. Your story about a little trip to Midleburg was interesting.'"

"After awhile, when I could talk, I said, as bravely as I could, 'You are talking nonsense, and you have no proof.'"

"He laughed very loudly, and I looked at the kitchen window, for the cook was making cookies there. He saw me turn and brought off his greasy cap with a low bow. 'A thousand pardons, Madame, for being so thoughtless. I shall speak more softly. Or perhaps I shan't speak at all—depending on your generosity toward a poor sinner.'"

"But you can't make anybody believe your tale?" I said to him, and he laughed again.

"Oh can't I? Well, I have a copy of a certain hotel record that would make the dean check up on your actions on a certain week-end pretty damn fast, I fancy."

"Well, I knew he had me there, for Timothy would turn every stone to find out where I was that week-end, and if he asked my people, they'd be sure to give it away that I never came to visit them. Judith, WHAT are we going to do?"

Judith sat down. "First, stop wringing your hands," she said. "We need our wits. I'm not ready to give up to 'KITTY' Shea without a struggle."

Mrs. Brown started. "Oh, I forgot to tell you. He said he had plenty on you to keep you forking out, too. Said you were scared to death of him."

Judith straightened her shoulders. "I'm not afraid of him," she said. "I'm not afraid of anybody." Mrs. Brown whimpered.

Judith sat thinking. "He does know something that I shouldn't like published," she said at last. "But it's nothing ruinous, and if necessary, I can brazen it out. However, you can't, and we've got to do something."

The dean's wife was looking at her with wide, terror-filled eyes. "If we don't, I'll have to get out of it all." She bent her taut body forward so that her white face was near Judith's. "You don't know what it means to be afraid—so afraid of a man that his key in the door makes your heart miss a beat—so afraid that you swallow your food whole when he sits across the table from you."

Judith shook her head. "No, I don't, thank God. It seems to me that you'd be better off if something did happen to release you. You'll collapse some day."

Mrs. Brown shrugged. "What if I do? I don't care much. But when I think of this man going to the dean with his story, and when the long, grueling agony of waiting for the dean to worm out the truth about that trip, I just give way. I can't stand it."

Judith stood up. "Is there anything in the world that you can count on? Have you any family?"

The dean's wife shook her head. "Nobody but sisters and aunts, and they'd all take the other side. In a matter of this sort, I have the sort of family that gave me the name Prudence." She smiled wanly.

Judith answered her slowly. "Can't you think of anyone?"

A slow flush crept upwards from the throat of the dean's wife. She dropped her eyes. "Well, there is one, but I can't appeal to that one—not without burning my boats here. He has said he is tired of half measures."

Judith stood looking at her, as though about to speak. "That is your own affair," she said, at length. "I cannot advise you. But there is someone that I can depend on. He may be able to manage this for us."

Mrs. Brown looked at her watch. "Oh, don't tell any one."

"It won't be necessary to compromise you," said Judith. "But Eric Waters knows Shea. He can help us, I believe."

"Are you sure Mr. Waters would not tell?" she asked.

Judith threw her head back. "Eric's not that sort. He's generous and loyal, even though he does stray off the narrow path of sobriety now and then. We can trust him."

Mrs. Brown looked at her wistfully. "It's almost time for the dean to go home. I don't want to meet him, until I've composed myself."

Judith peered at Mrs. Brown's face. "Powder your nose, and put on some color."

"I haven't any," said the dean's wife. "I'd never dare keep cosmetics around the house. The dean would find them and call me a scarlet woman. He hates them like poison."

Judith fished out her own vanity case and began to apply the rouge puff. Mrs. Brown submitted to it.

Judith pulled the woman's hat straight. "Something has got to happen to rescue you," she insisted. "I can't conceive of a woman living in such slavery."

Mrs. Brown smiled sadly. "You've never been married to Timothy Brown, my dear."

Judith shook her head. "No, the gods be praised," she said devoutly. "Look here, what did Shea mean about the hotel record? Did you sign your own name?"

Mrs. Brown nodded shamefacedly. "Yes. It was stupid, but I'd never been in a situation like that before. I had meant to use another name. But when I stepped up to the desk and the clerk handed me the pen, I wrote my name, automatically."

When I saw what I had done, I couldn't very well ask to change it."

SHE FLIES, SHE FLO ATS

One of the P. N. 10 flying boats in which Naval aviators are shortly to attempt a non-stop flight to Colon, Canal Zone, as it returned at the end of the initial trial hop to its Philadelphia hangar. An idea of the calibre of its first performance may be gained from the expressions of the crew.

"Well," said Judith, "There must be lots of Mrs. T. M. Browns."

The dean's wife put her hand to her forehead. "But that isn't all. I couldn't think of any town but Pendleton, and the clerk was watching me, and I wrote that down too."

Judith laughed. "You are certainly an amateur at vice, my dear. Then she brought out the little silver vanity case again, and thrust it in Mrs. Brown's hand."

"Smuggle this home and keep it in your holy of holies. And pray to it, if necessary, to keep your courage up. You won't be the first woman who has ridden through stormy seas on a paint pot and a dab of perfume. Now hurry, and don't weaken."

Eric Waters came up the Stedway steps at seven-thirty that night and walked through the open door unceremoniously. Lillian Stedway's frown at his impertinence elicited a particularly voluminous puff of smoke from Eric.

She paused obviously waiting for him to speak, but a girl came through the folding doors between the hall and the parlor, and Eric turned to her instead. "Please call Miss Martin." The girl smiled at his handsome blond face, and ran up the stairs. Miss Stedway slammed the dining room door behind her as she departed.

"Well, Judith," said the boy, when she came down the steps, wearing a topcoat that swung back over a blue dress.

"Thank you for coming so promptly," said Judith. "We'll go walking, so we can talk."

The evening was unmistakably of the severe and yellow season, with a sharp touch of frost in the air, and a tinge of yellow in the western sky, where the sun had gone down long before.

"Let's walk a little way out the Granville road," said Judith. "We mustn't be overheard."

"e looked at her curiously, but said nothing. When they had passed Eve Gerhart's bungalow, and were walking between open fields, Judith spoke again. "Eric, I've called you to ask help of you."

He looked at her more curiously. "You know any little thing that I can do is at your service," he said. "What's up?"

Judith turned and faced him. "Kitty" Shea is trying to blackmail me—and somebody else. You've got to stop him."

Eric stopped in his tracks. "Somebody else? Who is the other man, Judith?"

The Christmas holidays are approaching, and Judith remains at Pendleton. But tragedy stalks over the deserted campus.

Keep Eliminative System Active

Good Health Requires Good Elimination

TO be well one must keep the system free from the poisons of bodily waste. The kidneys are the blood filters. sluggish function, however, is apt to permit a retention of these body toxins which tend to make one feel listless, tired and achy. A toxic backache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning correctly is often shown by burning or scanty passages. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys in this condition by the use of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are used the world over. Ask your neighbor!

BERLIN'S DIVORCE MILL WORKS AT DOUBLE TIME

Berlin (P)—Berliners are rushing to the divorce courts with nearly twice the frequency they sought those tribunals before the war.

At the same time the number of marriages shows a slight falling off. Statistics reveal some 8,999 divorces in 1925 as against 4,669 in 1919, while marriages dropped from 25,600 in the year before the war to 23,199 last year.

BUT—HE "FELT NO BETTER FOR THAT"

A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me—and in two days' time my cough was entirely gone. Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. Ask for it. Sold everywhere."

TEXAS GUINAN SAYS YOU MUST KNOW HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL BY NIGHT—SHE HAS LEARNED ALL THERE IS TO KNOW ABOUT NOCTURNAL MAKEUP

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEW YORK—Breakfast when the chickens seek their perches and lights out when the early bird has turned homeward with a heavy catch of worms is more fun than the early-to-bed-early-to-rise system. But it has its disadvantages—take it from Texas Guinan.

This colorful woman, New York's most sophisticated night club hostess, who entertains the butter-and-egg men, the Prince of Wales, stage celebrities and social registerites with equal ease, literally lives from nine to nine, counter clockwise.

"She comes up for daylight only at about eight o'clock in the morning, when she taxis to her home from her club."

"If one lived only by sunlight—how simple," says she, "massaging her face with a thick, highly perfumed cleansing cream. But living under an electric spot—there's something to worry about."

TWO DIFFERENT METHODS

"Beauty by day and beauty by candle light require entirely different techniques. To be beautiful by day you must be born so. To be beautiful by night you must know how."

"Dress Venus herself in blue and put her in a room lighted with yellow lights and Sadie Smith in mauve chiffon can show her cards and spades."

By this time something that looked like mud in the bottle was spread over Miss Guinan's thoroughly cleansed face where it dried in a nice dull white foundation.

"When you go to a theater or a night club or restaurant, don't dress for yourself your escort, or to spite your enemy—dress for the lights."

Now a brilliant rouge was dabbed on the cheekbones.

"With rooms that are brilliantly lighted artificially, with lots of glitter and crystal overhead, one toned chiffon and pastel colored velvet frocks are charming. Many sequins and colorful beadings and tinsels are better in indirectly lighted rooms."

"In a bright room, avoid eccentric makeup, keep to the natural pink and white and the crimson lipstick. My own club is brilliantly lighted, so there I use a natural pink powder, over a white foundation—two coats of powder are better than one and you don't have to be constantly dabbing your nose. My makeup stays on until I clean it off with cold cream. I never have to think of my complexion after I've applied it.

"And," she put in with a laugh, "my complexion is a lot different before and after—believe me."

Now white powder was dimming the high spots of rouge.

"Under yellow lights you can use a yellowish powder if you like, or a white, and a vermillion or yellow-red lipstick and look very snappy. But under the blue lights this will make you look like a first class copy of King Tut—or as if you had been caught in the act of eating blueberry pie, for your skin will be ashen and your lips blue.

"A red or flame colored gown is excellent for a room with yellow lights. So is mauve, purple or black."

Here she reached for a second box of powder, a very deep orchid in shade, but obediently pink when applied over the white surface she had ready to receive it.

"Many night clubs and restaurants use reddish lights," she went on, "under which yellow powder is better than pink, and a vermillion lip stick, quite appropriate. Yellow, orange, red, white or black gowns are best with such light. White takes on a pinkish glow that is very youthful."

A bluish powder ever so lightly applied on her eyelids was giving an interesting depth to Miss Guinan's blue eyes.

"When you are young enough, you can have blue shadows. As you grow older the whites of the eyes become yellow, as they inevitably do, use green."

A sixty-year-old beauty who looks 20 keeps green powder at her bedside which she puts on the minute she awakens—it somehow drives the yellow from the eye itself. Naturally, I'm assuming discretion in the use of, of course."

DIAMONDS FOOL-PROOF

At this point mascara blossomed on the eyelashes.

"I never attend a first night or any evening function, without making an attempt to find out what the lighting system is first, if I don't happen to know—but actually I know how nearly every theater and restaurant in New York is decorated and lighted."

"When I have no information to guide me, I make up pink or orchid powder, natural colored rouge and wear a white or black gown with a few diamonds and pearls. Either is nearly fool-proof."

"I have dozens of face powders and rouges, all in different shades, and each one does a definite thing to my complexion under given lighting conditions. I have frocks of every color which I wear, not according to my mood, but the electrician's. If I have a reputation for being well dressed—that's how I earned it."

By this time it was midnight. She snapped the last diamond bracelet on her wrist, ran a comb through her blonde hair and was ready to start on her job.

WOMAN CONQUERS FEARS

Husband Delighted and Home Happier

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers," Mrs. Jack Lorberer, of 704 Delaware Street, wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company. "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start in right now and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results." In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, "I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight, I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me. One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing, she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. 'I bought the Vegetable Compound,' Mrs. Lorberer continued, 'and have had fine results. The condition I was in made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask how a housekeeper should be. It is just like being in Heaven!'

WOMEN RECOGNIZED CULTURALLY

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

WOMEN may have struggled for recognition in the political and business world, but in point of culture it appears that throughout the ages, she has been naturally, if rather gradually, coming into her own.

Clayton Hamilton, New York dramatic critic tells us that the drama originally was written for and acted by men. Greek drama in the days of Pericles was not attended by women, although audiences of 20,000 men were a usual thing.

Even in Shakespeare's time, women were not expected to attend plays. No women appeared on the stage, feminine roles being played by boys. Shakespeare's plays were written to appeal to men.

Moliere, the famous French playwright, did the same—his leading parts were written for and given to men. The women's parts did not amount to much.

In the last hundred years things have changed. Even being one of the pioneers who wrote largely for women and gave his chief roles to women.

Now, women, we are told, form the greater part of the discriminating audience of fine plays, and as a class would appear to appreciate the great possibilities of the drama more than men.

As for the change in theme, that of giving the leading dramatic roles in more recently composed plays—is there not a reason?

As long as woman was kept in the background of the home with no interest save her housekeeping, she was an undramatic figure. As soon as she became a personality, a creature wit problems, and ideals, and a struggle on her hands to get away from her subordinate servility—then she became interesting enough to be dramatic. Since then she has continued to be a creature to be reckoned with in the dramatic world.

Now, she not only occupies the chief roles in the drama, but a center seat in cities' row.

I can hear husbands sniffling, "Yes, because we have to grub to buy their tickets. We are too tired to go to one of your degenerate plays."

If husband says this there is only one thing for a wife to do. Take him to a musical comedy.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Bill and Frances Warren had visited very seldom in the Lane home, though the popular brother and sister, children of a wholesale druggist, had been glad to draw the gay, beautiful, clever little Cherry into their circle. Every town has its circle of "society," and the Warrens moved comfortably and freely in the second circle. Ambitious Mrs. Warren had high hopes of marriage with old Mr. Cluny, a charming young man of the innermost circle, and that her wedding party would reflect credit upon her own pre-nuptial social status.

Both Faith and Cherry knew quite well that Frances Warren had consented to be a bridesmaid at her wedding because it would throw her into contact with both the Prutts and the Clunys—leaders of the holy inner circle—and knew equally well that Selma Pruitt would never have accepted Cherry's invitation to serve as bridesmaid if her brother, George, anxious to befriend Faith, had not insisted on her doing so.

But Cherry bothered her curiously, little head not at all with the polished, well-to-do, of a fine, strong hand. Why did they all bother to shield Cherry? Somehow she had summoned Bill Warren to her rescue, after her father had seen her in Chris Wiley's roadster.

"Have one?" Bill Warren grinned, as he extended his cigarette case toward Cherry.

She took one, put it between her lips, and leaned forward to light it at Bill's flaming match.

"No," Faith spoke sharply, snatching the cigarette from Cherry's lips. "You know you promised Dad you wouldn't. You've caused him enough heartaches for one night, Cherry. Don't encourage her to do things she shouldn't. Bill."

"Oh, bottle it!" Cherry cried angrily. "Everybody smokes. Thank God, I'm getting married and I can do as I please then. Oh, say, Faith, sit down, and don't look like a Christian martyr. There's oceans to tell you. I suppose Dad raised the roof? Just my luck to have him on a West Tenth Street car for probably the first time in a year."

"Why do you do such insane things? Everybody knows you're engaged to Mr. Cluny, and yet you throw yourself wide open to scandal by being seen two or three times a week with Chris Wiley?"

"I guess Long's been tattling," Cherry flamed. "I didn't really have a date with him. He just saw me walking along on Chestnut Street and offered me a lift. Of course we got to quarreling about my wedding, and he simply refused to take me home. That's how Dad happened to see us by the end of the car line. Then he made me dine with him out on the pike, at 'Ye Olde Logge Cabin'—the grandest fried chicken you ever tasted, Faith."

"I take off my hat to Chris if he can 'make' her to anything!" Faith interrupted bitterly. "It's more than your father or mother or sister can do. Well, go on. You're saving up something to shock me with. I can tell."

"Oh, what an evening!" Cherry shuddered, but her eyes were bright with excitement. "Faith, can you feature this—we were followed! Shadowed!"

"Shadowed? Oh, Cherry, by a detective? Oh, I wish you would behave yourself! We'll all have nervous prostration before you're safely married!"

"I'm getting an awful kick out of it," Cherry laughed, shrugging her shoulders. "I'm positively thrilled to death! Fancy being important enough to be shadowed!"

"How do you know you were followed?" Faith spoke naturally, conquering her impulse to slap Cherry's lovely, flushed cheek resentfully.

"Oh, my dear!" The light, tinkling laugh rang out. "There was no doubt at all. I began to get wise last week when I kept seeing a funny looking man everywhere I went. Why do they pick out such homely sleuths? He certainly has a face you can't forget. Positively monkey-like! And he always needs a shave. Short, thick, bow-legged, grumpy-haired, pig eyes. Isn't he like that, Bill?"

MINIATURES OF MANY PROMINENT APPLETON WOMEN TO BE EXHIBITED

Miniatures of several of Appleton's prominent women including those of Mrs. R. H. Purdy and Mrs. G. E. Buchanan of this city and Mrs. Dan Kimberly of Neenah will be placed on exhibition at the Milwaukee Journal Art galleries on Dec. 14. The miniatures were made by Eda Neemoede Casterton of Chicago one of the most interesting personalities who has visited Appleton and neighboring cities for some time. Mrs. Casterton, formerly a resident of Wisconsin, having lived at Oconto, will be the guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. Al Schrader at Kaukauna for a few days before returning to her studio a Chicago.

Some of the reasons why Mrs. Casterton is interesting are these: she is a member of the American Society of Miniature Painters, which has admitted only 23 members since organization. This membership is drawn from the entire country and gives a comprehensive insight into the qualifications of such an artist. She was awarded a bronze medal at the Sesqui-Centennial this year for a miniature painting of Miss Goss of Chicago and has exhibited in the Paris Salon, 1908; won honorable mention International Art Union, Paris, 1907 and 1908; awarded a silver medal at the Panama-International exposition. Mrs. Casterton is a member of the American Society of Miniature Painters, Pennsylvania S. M. P., Chicago S. M. P. and elected member Royal society of Miniature painters.

FACINATING ART
The works of miniature painting is a fascinating art. The modeling and painting is all done directly from life, a very delicate drawing of the subject upon the ivory being the first step. This must be done with the greatest care to prepare it for the delicate coloring that is to follow. There are no two skins alike in tone or texture, said Mrs. Casterton, and this necessitates a close study of the skin to ascertain the exact tint which must be applied to each part of the face. All the modeling is done under a magnifying glass which makes the detail doubly tedious and exacting.

When the painting is completed, Mrs. Casterton calls in her artist jeweler, Miss Christa Reade, an artist in her line and together they go over the type of the subject, for every type requires a frame of its own style and moulding. The demure child with angelic expression requires a robust boy-child, whose very expression denotes his manliness. And when the two have agreed just what frame shall be added to the miniature the goldsmith sets to work and completes the work. Thus the frame of a miniature is quite as important as the miniature itself and is selected not for itself but for its relation to the subject.

"Like an old miniature"—how often one hears the phrase in expression of a beauty that has passed—of an art that has been reduced with the years. It is true that the stately young woman with hair piled softly about her face, her drop shoulder gown revealing shoulders of symmetry and beauty and arms of graceful lines, is largely the accepted subject of a "miniature," but why?

MANY FALSE WORKS SOLD
The answer comes easily when the searchlight of realism is thrown on the subject. And it is just this, miniature painting is a rare art. It traces its origin to the ages wherein printing was practically unknown, to the period when books where works of art and when illustrations were hand illustrations. In fact the miniature is the descendant of the illumination, and those familiar with it can easily see how the minute reproduction painted on the parchment sheet gradually developed into the higher art of miniature painting.

But the so-called miniature painter came into the scene and began flooding the country with his spurious "works of art," which were accepted as the real thing until time revealed the error. Today there are hundreds of student artists who spend their summers in studios of the big photographers coloring so-called miniatures. And when these are finished the photographer collects as high as $500 each for the "miniatures." And in truth they are nothing more than photographs transferred to the ivory and painted.

The sale of these alleged miniatures has become a thriving business and annually thousands of dollars are taken from a community, leaving nothing but colored photographs of commercial miniatures.

John Long of Chicago is spending several days with relatives in Appleton. He is a former resident of this city.

MISTAKEN FOR WAITER, FRITZ CHANGES UNIFORM

Berlin, —(AP)—Republican simplicity in diplomatic dress has failed to work out in the young German Republic.

After eight years the danger of diplomats being mistaken for waiters became so real that president Hindenburg and the cabinet passed an order allowing German envoys abroad, the foreign minister and the secretary of state to wear a semblance of the gorgeous old monarchist uniforms at state functions.

Under Secretary of State Karl von Schubert was the first to blossom out in the new navy blue garb with a double-tailed frock, gilded buttons and a peaked ostrich-plumed hat. Wearing of the new uniforms is discretionary.

Russian boots with elastic sides which fit closely around the ankle, are being worn by women of London.

Special to Post-Crescent
Chilton—The annual sale of Christmas seals opened on Thanksgiving day under the direction of G. M. Morrissey. The sales are being made by the children of the public and parochial schools. This is the twentieth year of the Christmas seal. Twenty years ago tuberculosis caused more deaths than any other disease. It was up to this time considered incurable. But finally physicians discovered that it could be cured by rest, fresh air, nourishing food and proper medical attention. In 1905 tuberculosis killed 109 out of every 100,000 people in this state. Last year only 60 out of every 100,000 died of that disease. This decrease was made possible by the generosity of the people in buying the Christmas seals.

The Needed Kind Of Funeral Service

To contribute most considerately every preparation for the care of the one departed, and every comforting thought for those bereaved, constitute the aim and attitude and attention of Brettschneider's funeral service

Added to that is a policy of cooperation in the important matter of costs — assisting toward price selection within the family's ability to pay.

And such service is indeed the need at the time.

'Al' And 'Ed' Wear Mien Of Churchly Piety In Court

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Piety is upon the faces of Edward L. Doheny and Albert B. Fall as they face a jury in the District of Columbia supreme court here, hoping to escape possible prison sentences on charges of conspiring to defraud the government.

They may have been hard-boiled, weather-beaten, bronzed and grizzled prospectors of the western mountains 30 years ago.

They may have conspired, as the government charges, to loot the nation of millions by the bribery-induced leasing of naval oil lands.

But today, as they sit in court listening to the evidence against them, they present perfect types for deacon or vestrymen of the most righteous church of God.

WHITE-HAired, KINDLY

Their seats are behind a long table reserved for their high-priced and talented staff of attorneys. They are separated only by Edward L. Doheny, Jr., the oil magnate's son, who sits between them.

To a stranger they appear to be just two nice, white-haired, kindly, soft-looking, gold-spectacled old men.

Fall, they say, has wasted away since first his troubles began. But he displays every aspect of confidence, and his smile is that of a Sunday school teacher.

His court dress is a blue serge suit, with starched collar and a blue bow tie spotted with two or three medium-sized polka dots.

Fall does not miss a word of the proceedings. As he occasionally beams into his benign smile, the unprejudiced spectator finds himself asking:

"Did the deacon steal the proceeds from the chicken-pie supper, or did he not?"

SEVENTY AND SIXTY-FIVE

Doheny is 70 and Fall is 65. Doheny is worth $100,000,000 and Fall presumably never had more at one time than $100,000 loan or whatever it was that he received from Doheny.

Doheny's appearance of gentle piety is easier to understand. Most multimillionaires who have fought their way to the top through the bitter struggle for great wealth begin to get that way as they approach their threescore years and ten.

The oil magnate is a little deaf. Sometimes he cups an ear to catch what is being said. His face is florid. It is easy to believe that he is a thousand times as wealthy as Fall, although one man equals the other in court-room poise. His face has a look that is almost meek, however.

He dresses conservatively in a black suit whose vest almost conceals his stiff collar and conservative cravat. In every outward respect, he would pass for the philanthropist which his friends say he was when he sent $100,000 in a little black bag to his old friend, Fall.

The prettiest figure in the courtroom is the secretary of Frank J. Hogan, Doheny's chief counsel, who sits at an end of the defense table.

DAPPER E. B. McLEAN

Among the vastly preponderant contingent of males, perhaps Edward B. McLean, who once, like Fall, was a bosom friend of Warren G. Harding, is the most dapper.

McLean, too, is greatly interested in the trial. Senate members long sought to connect him directly with the alleged Elk Hills-Teapot Dome intrigue.

PURCHASES STATE LUNCH

RESTAURANT AT OSHKOSH

William Beson, 157 W. Seymour st., has purchased the State Lunch restaurant at Oshkosh. He took over the management of the business this week. Leonard Root of Medina has purchased a 40-acre farm, equipped with machinery, in the town of Center. It formerly was owned by Edward E. Alesch. The Andrew Stark farm in the town of Greenville was sold to R. Plunker of Hortonville. Mr. Plunker took charge of the farm at once. All sales were made by the Laabs and Shepherd Real Estate company.

DRIFTED ROADS LOWER STOCK FAIR ATTENDANCE

Because deep snow drifts blocked many country roads, only a small number of farmers attended the monthly stock fair at the Stock Fair grounds on N. Walnut st. Saturday. At 10 o'clock there were only about 100 farmers at the grounds and three buyers. Two of the dealers were from Whitewater and the third from Green Bay.

Young porklings were bringing from $3 to $5 each. Buyers bought the stock almost as soon as it reached the grounds. It was expected that a few more farmers would reach Appleton before noon. Buyers estimated that not more than 200 pigs would be purchased.

BUILDING INSPECTOR SUPPORTED BY LABOR

A resolution upholding the action of the city building inspector in "enforcing the rules and regulations of the city building code and protecting the public interests," probably will be adopted at the next meeting of the Appleton Trades and Labor council, according to Fred Bachman, president. Following a general discussion at the semi-monthly meeting Wednesday evening at Trades and Labor hall, a committee was appointed to draft a suitable resolution. If adopted it may be presented to the common council.

The official report of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, held in Detroit last summer, was read. Preparations for a card party to be held at the Trades and Labor hall Sunday afternoon were made.

Hi Colwell Hot Band. 12 Corgs, Sun.

the wife of young "Ned," are in court.

The elder Mrs. Doheny wears a wine-colored felt hat, trimmed in magenta and rose. Pearls adorn her ears, but any other jewelry she may wear is covered by fawn-colored gloves. She wears a checked brown dress with accented-pleated skirt and over it a gray fur coat.

The younger Mrs. Doheny appears in a black cloth coat, trimmed with black fur and a flesh-colored blouse with stockings to match. Her skirt is black silk and her hat of the conventional black felt type, with a silver cloth band.

They can look across the crowded counsel tables at the jury, which faces them.

Behind the enclosure sit more than 40 newspaper men, demonstrating that the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial is a formidable rival, journalisticly speaking, to the Hall-Mills murder case.

STAGE And SCREEN

SAILOR SUITS NOT SO NOBBY

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton have cast their lot with the four-million marines, doughboys and gobs tried to massage a number six headpiece on a size seven head.

When the Paramount pair "joined" the army as doughboys in "Behind the Front," they annexed the usual number of misfit articles of wearing apparel. In "We're in the Navy Now," they fare even worse in the "catch what they throw at you" method of distributing uniforms which prevailed during the World War.

Hatton had to shoe-horn his way into a Navy outfit. The first time he fell in the water his trousers tightened to such an extent that stooping would have raised havoc. It took him half an hour to worry out of them.

Beery found it necessary to affix a latch-string attachment to his necker extremely covering to hold them up. They barged about his legs like a pair of skirts and a mere twitch of the string dangled the entire yardage.

The first time Beery and Hatton came out on the set, each sported three chevrons on his cuff. This being against regulations, rookies not rating first class seamen's stripes, they were promptly ripped off.

Uniformed with Beery and Hatton in Paramount's new comedy are Chester Conklin and Tom Kennedy. "We're in the Navy Now" comes to the Fishers Appleton Theatre next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

"WHEN HUSBANDS FLIRT" GIVES FORREST STANLEY FINE SUPPORTING ROLE.

Dorothy Revier has one of the most interesting portrayals of her career in "When Husbands Flirt." At the New Bijou Monday and Tuesday. She is a sweet young bride perplexed by the conviction that her newly acquired husband is as unfaithful as he is handsome.

Forrest Stanley has the role of an innocent victim of circumstance. That hilarious comedian, Tom Ricketts, raises his typical part in this picture to a superlative mirth-provoking degree. Mr. Ricketts has no equal when it comes to just this sort of character comedy. He could not be better.

Ethel Wales as Mrs. Becher (a name aptly fitting the character) has an unusual bit of colorful characterization. Marie Wayne is another prominent name in the cast. Miss Wayne, for years a noted artist's undoubted natural talent for the screen.

Frank Weed and Irwin Connolly are two others who contribute important moments to the film.

The story deals with one of the most amazing mix-ups which might occur in the course of an ordinary domestic life. Four people happy, content, and law-abiding, are suddenly thrust into a whirlpool of vamps, divorces, and political intrigue.

It is a swift, dramatic picture with the sort of a climax that should stir the most cynical mind to real excitement.

"SPARROWS" CALLED MARY'S GREATEST

Mary Pickford, who has made a score of screen masterpieces, and bought pleasure to millions, has just completed a picture which is said by many critics to be the best of her career.

The picture is "Sparrows," a United Artists Corporation release, and it comes to the Elite theatre on Monday for an engagement of four days. The role offers to Mary Pickford a splendid opportunity. At times she is an impish, mischievous little boyden, and yet again the tender mother heart yearning over the sorrows of the babies and comforting them with stolen dremas and magic lisses.

There is no fine raiment for "The World's Sweetheart" in this picture, no gorgeous costumes nor fairy princess. Quainter than Annie Rooney, sweeter than ever, until the very end of the picture, she is tattered and torn, bare-legged, ragged, but radiant.

There is not a dull moment in the story, and the picture is brimming with comedy. It has punch and thrills and suspense—everything a successful picture needs, and in addition it has the one and only Mary Pickford.

LOCAL CAGE SQUADS START REAL WORKOUTS NEXT WEEK

Orangemen Take First Practice Monday While Blues Start Class Play

Christophmen Open Practice Friday: Four Lettermen Back for Each Team

Basketball for local cage squads will get off to a real start Monday when both basketballers of Appleton high school and Lawrence college swing in to practice sessions for the first games of their schedules about a month away. The Orange cagers, who open the season with a valley conference game with Oshkosh here on Jan. 8, start practice on fundamentals Monday as the first regular practice of the year.

Over at Lawrence college, the class men, from which the Blue squad for the year is picked, with the past lettermen, of course, starts Monday and carries through to Thursday. Two games are played each afternoon at 4 o'clock by the four rival class teams coached by the lettermen. Thursday or Friday, the best men of the meet plus the lettermen will get their first practice under George Christoph, new mentor, and by a week from Monday practice will be in full swing. The Blues meet Chicago University at Chicago on Dec. 27 in their first game.

The nucleus of the Blue squad will be composed of five 1926 lettermen. Bruce, ex-captain and an all-Midwest man, will be at one guard and Capt. Grove at the other. Both have played two years of varsity. At center the veteran is Sam, who played three years ago. He was out of school a year. Forwards are Clark, who earned his letter last year and Heide, a two-year man. Other promising material includes Hilt, Jones and Fisch, forwards, members of last year's first team. Hiltman, 1926 forward, guards, Steensland and Schlagenhauf, guards, and several other new men.

Appleton high school's hopes for a successful season will be built around Lutz and Strutz, forwards, and Capt. Steinberg and Pfeiffer, guards lettermen of last year. As Lawrence lost two stars, Ashman, center, and Cline, forward, before their school days were over, so did the Orange suffer the same fate this year. Al Cookson reached the age limit and his brother, Frank, will be playing against Appleton for Fond du Lac. Both were speedy forwards and Frank's work should be a great aid to the Red squad.

On the Orange squad, Lutz played but a short time last year, his first, but his work in that period classed him with the best shots and dribblers in the conference. His footwork and speed also showed to advantage. Strutz is a steady, consistent veteran of two years of play as is Pfeiffer. Steinberg played with actual big game experience as a star at running guard, his dribbling to carry the ball to his forwards being his best point. Losses to the Orange were Ashman, center, and Cline, forward.

Steinberg has plenty of reach and speed and is a good shot so that he may be shifted to the basket center berth. Several boys out for the team would make good running mates for Pfeiffer. These include Kunitz, star reserve guard last year, who is ready to try for a first-team berth, Reetz, Schaefer and others. From last year's second team comes much promising material with actual big game experience. Illinois Grid Coach Is Artist On And Off Field

BY BILLY EVANS

Bob Zuppke, when not coaching football at University of Illinois, is an artist. He is said to be as skillful with the brush as he is on the gridiron. Zuppke specializes in marines.

One year when Illinois came on the field to meet the Ohio State you could tell the Zuppke players a mile away. Running up and down the jerseys were vivid leather stripes several inches wide. The helmets of the players, gleaming to receive the pass were of a brighter hue than any of the others.

SHOULD STAR NEXT SEASON

JOHN CAVOSIE

Tab this fellow's name in your notebook. You're apt to hear much about him on the football field next season. He's a triple-threat star and now is a freshman at University of Wisconsin.

Cavosie prepped at Ironwood (Mich.) High, where he gained distinction by kicking a dropkick from the 55-yard stripe.

ALEX ADHERES TO PITCHING RULES

Star Hurler of Cardinals Tells How He Throws to Opposing Batsmen

Omaha, Neb.—Grover Cleveland Alexander, hero of the 1926 world series, has certain pet theories on pitching that he has strictly adhered to since his advent into the majors.

At a recent dinner given in his honor, he gave the following reasons for the success that he has attained as a pitcher.

"Good control. It can be acquired by constant practice. When warming up, instead of merely throwing the ball to his catcher, a pitcher should aim to place it at a certain height.

"Having something in reserve. Don't make it a practice to put all your stuff on every ball pitched. Try to have something a little bit different up your sleeve when the opposition starts to hit you.

"Don't try for strikeouts. Just remember you have eight other players in the field anxious to help you. Go for a strikeout only when it is most necessary to win.

"In this connection I refer you to the world series game in which I was called up to relieve Haines with the bases filled and two out. Go for a strikeout in such a spot. I pitched to Lazerri's weakness and put everything I had on each ball.

"Figure all batters dangerous. Never loaf on any batter no matter how poor a hitter he is supposed to be. Weak hitters break up ball games almost as often as the sluggers."

hate to lose, rather than those who accept the outcome merely as a part of the day's work.

When Monmouth trimmed Knox Thursday afternoon the curtain was rung down on the 1927 Midwest conference season with Carleton college of Northfield, Minnesota, on top with three wins and no defeats. Though winning but three games, the Carleton men beat Coe, 3-0, and so have a fine claim to the title as Coe is next in line with 5 wins and a loss. Had Coe played six games, winning five and losing one, and that one had not been Carleton, it could have laid claim as the Minnesota collegians played but three games. Monmouth beat Knox, 15-0, and increased its hold on third place a few per centage points.

The season's end finds, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin in the order named in the race. Minnesota had perhaps the best showing with the title squad and Hamline in a fourth-place tie, but the two Gopher teams played but five games altogether.

BLUES LEAD WISCONSIN Lawrence college's grid squad, after a poor start, which chalked up a loss to Coe, managed to get an even score, tying Ripon and trimming St. John's, to finish in a tie for fourth. This gave the Blues further honors to add to their state and W-L conference title claims, as they were the leading Badger team in the bigger loop. Ripon finished with a .333 mark and Beloit lost every one of six games played. Knox's loss Thursday gave Ripon a clear claim to seventh place.

REAL STAR

GEORGE GUTTORMSEN

Washington has been minus the services of the sensational George Wilson on the football field this fall, but in another George-Guttormsen it has a fellow only a step or so behind the great 1925 star. Guttormsen is captain quarterback of this season's team, is a heady field general and a regular Paddock in gridiron tops. When the boys down front start doing out their All-America aggregations this chap Guttormsen is certain to come in for much consideration.

BIG TEN LEADERS ABOLISH SHIFTS

Huddle System to See More Use as Shift Vanishes; Maroons, Purple Break

Chicago—(AP)—The virtual abolition of the shift in Western Conference football next year by vote of the coaches at the annual schedule meeting to enforce a full two second stop before the start of plays, promises to revolutionize the game.

"The most radical step since the forward pass" one coach said, and his opinion that the move will result next fall in Big Ten attacks from open or semi-open formations was generally held among the athletic directors.

Eight of the conference eleven used the shift to greater or less extent this season, only Michigan being unaffected by Friday's decision and Ohio State only to a slight degree.

The offense systems of Minnesota, Chicago and Indiana will have to be entirely made over and changes made in the tactics of the others, coaches said.

Opposing teams from outside the conference will be expected to observe the ruling and Coach Robert Zuppke of Illinois has announced his intention of waging a similar fight at the rules committee meeting in New York this winter.

Zuppke stood out for official action to fix a definite standard to insure complete halt of the offensive team before it charges after a shift, rather than leaving the decision to harassed referee and after Coach Spears of Minnesota volunteered to drop the play the Gophers gave football years ago there was a landslide in support of abolition.

The action of the Minnesota coach smoothed out one of the difficulties in the schedule session's leading Michigan to agree to meet the Gophers next fall, the shift being a chief factor in Michigan's inclination to not schedule the game.

Another high light in the meeting was the scheduling of a Michigan-Chicago game, which will mark their re-union of gridiron relations after a lapse of seven years. The rumored break between Chicago and Northwestern materialized in their failure to arrange a 1927 game.

Chicago's six conference engagements were the largest number scheduled by a Big Ten team. Michigan, Northwestern, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois arranged for five each and Indiana, Minnesota and Purdue scheduled four apiece.

Six major interconference for midwestern eleven were announced three at home and three in the east. Rocke announced that Southern California will play Notre Dame in Chicago on Nov. 26 as one of the biggest of the lot. Rocke scheduled but two Big Ten opponents. All but three of the conference teams still had open dates Saturday.

The conference it was decided will universally adopt the huddle system for signals next fall further changing tactics affected by the shift ruling.

APPLETON MEN TO OFFICIATE IN LOOP

Blue Athletic Head, Witte of Roosevelt, Join Kotal, Wright as Officials

Kimberly—Coach George F. Christoph, acting athletic director of Lawrence college, and W. A. Witte of Roosevelt Junior High school have been put on the list of the Wisconsin State Basketball League officials, according to work received from F. W. Epling, president of the league.

Christoph and Witte will not officiate in the first two weeks of the league competition as officials have already been chosen for these games. Other referees from Appleton are "Eddie" Kotal of the Green Bay Packers and Warren Wright of the Appleton high school faculty. There are at present twenty officials on the league list including six men from Milwaukee, three from Manitowoc, two from Sheboygan, and other men from West Bend, Fond du Lac, Port Washington, Oshkosh, Kaukauna and Kohler.

With this efficient list of officials the State league is guaranteed good snap-shot basketball through-out the season.

BACK AS MANAGER?

HARRY HOOPER

Former member of famous Lewis, Speaker, Hooper outfield of Boston Red Sox who may return as manager to succeed Lee Fohl. Harry went to Chicago much to the regret of the fans and then dropped out of the picture last summer when the White Sox refused to meet his terms. He is popular in Boston.

Dave's Dots And Dashes

When Marinette beat Superior Thursday, five of Coach Tom Johnson's stars finished their prep grid careers. These included Marinette's three outstanding linemen this year as well as a classy pair of backs. The linemen were Capt. Kresky, Kohlman and Hulten and the backs Erickson and Pinegar.

Kresky, Kohlman and Hulten will be picked for almost every all-conference team chosen because of their work at end, tackle and guard which gave the Purple an extra strong line. With them gone next year, a team with a strong line should be able to better Marinette considerably. Pinegar and Erickson will be on one of the first three all-conference teams picked by practically every chooser this year. The former won a half job on Bill Smith's first squad. On the Post-Crescent teams, Kresky, Kohlman and Hulten were first team men, Erickson, second and Pinegar, third.

Two papers of the valley beside the Post-Crescent probably will pick all star teams this year, though Fondy and Oshkosh also may. We'll let you know how they compare with ours. Manitowoc comes out Monday and already has Testuville as its quarter. Undoubtedly a Manitowoc man Fishbeck, Wilda or Peppard is at first team half also.

With eight regulars or reserves of last year back again, Manitowoc already is having pipe dreams about its 1927 valley conference cage champs. Manitowoc says it wonders if by recording a few track, basketball and cross-country trophies, there'll be room for another cage cup in its trophy case. Evidently expects to win it. We understand that Peppard, its star man, graduates at the end of the first semester and rumors are floating around that he will be over 20 when the cage season opens in January. It'd be a tough blow for the Ships.

The Ships have a hot method of consoling themselves for a football season in which they finished sixth, two from the bottom, after boasting of expecting to nose out Appleton for third. Quoting from Manitowoc, "We are not alone in our opinion that only one team that faced the Red this season was better than Manitowoc, that being Marinette. Every other team of the remaining seven was outplayed, outsmarted and everything else but beaten, though four victories have been chalked up. Appleton should have been beaten 19 to 6. We'll concede them that first touchdown. We were sleeping, but never the seconds. The last minute of play found Manitowoc bewildered and only four yards from a score. Final: Manitowoc 7, Appleton 13.

West Green Bay should have been pie for the boys. On the long end in the third quarter, one little slip gave the Bays their chance and they scored. Two touchdowns in the last four minutes of play, two fukes if two ever happened, can account for

MANY KILLED AND HURT IN EXPLOSION ON OIL TANKER

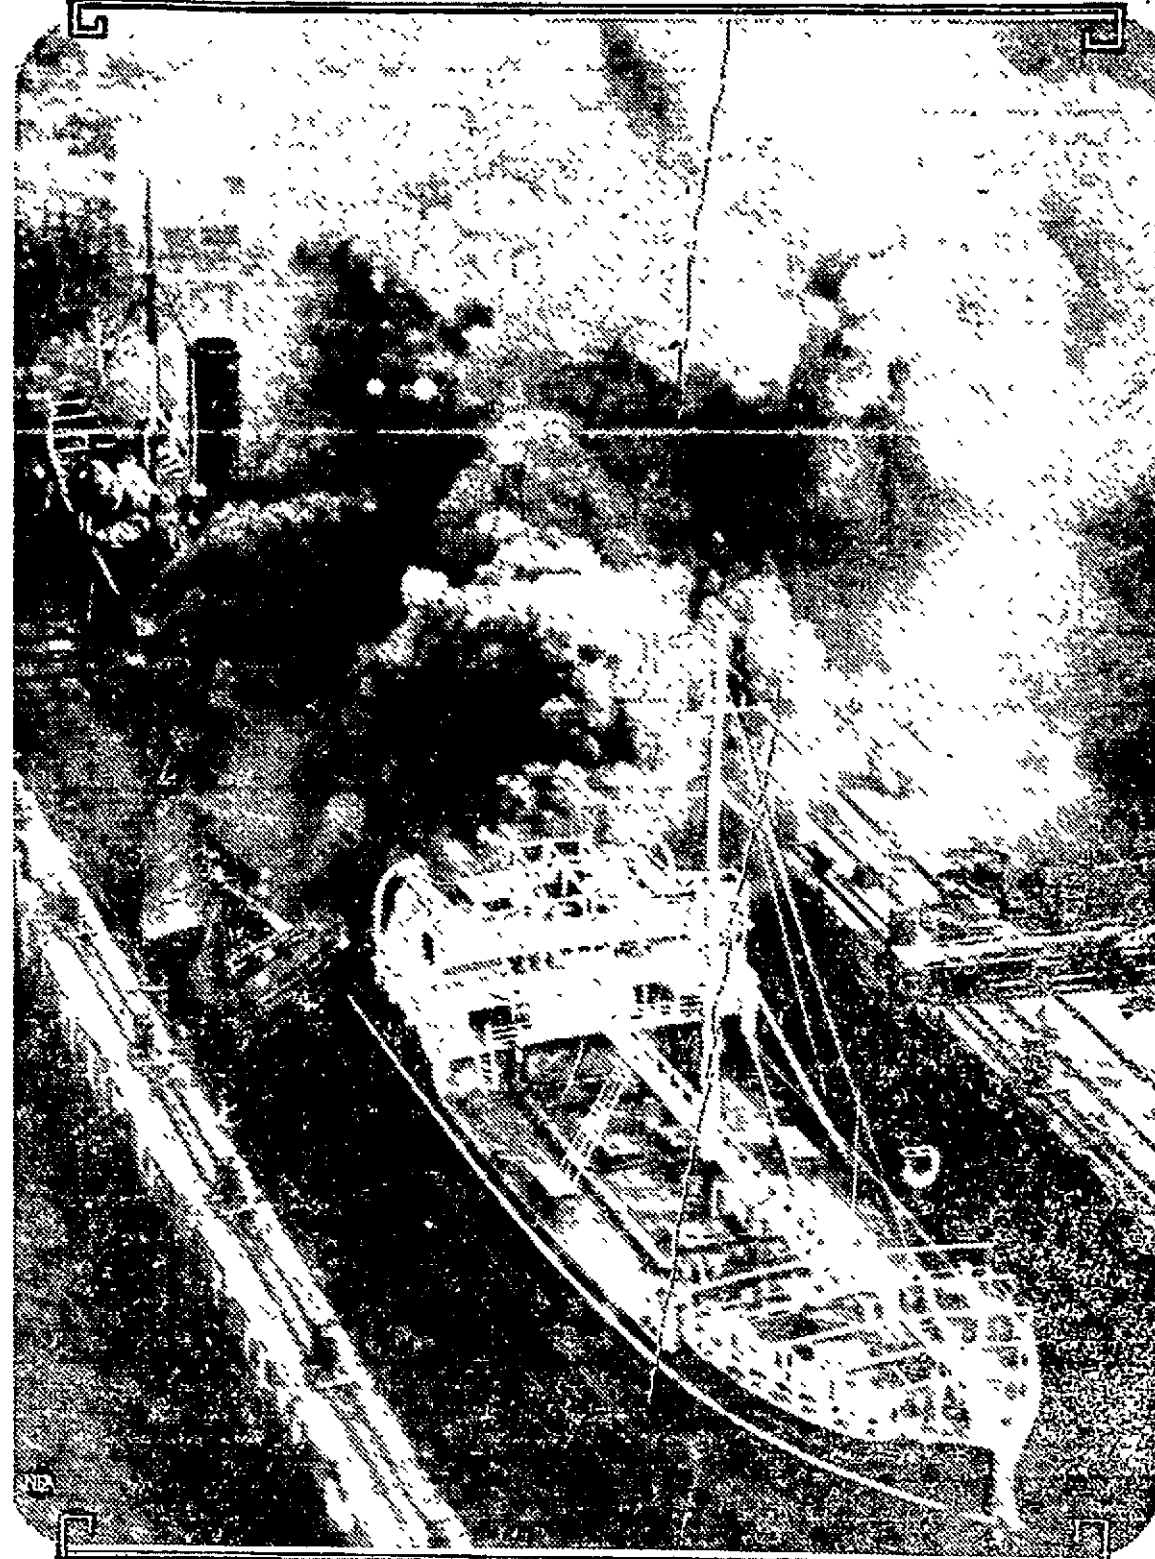

Miss Ellis Bostrom is a charmingly beautiful favorite in Washington's diplomatic society circle. She is the daughter of the minister from Sweden.

Oh, what a cold! Napoleon, prize orange-outang of the Philadelphia zoo, is suffering from a bad one. Pennsylvania weather doesn't compare with that of the African jungle, he snuffles.

Robert Barr (above), has succeeded the late Peter A. Mallon as warden of the Tombs Prison in New York. Mallon was fatally shot during the recent attempted jail break.

Recapitulation of the casualties in the explosion on the oil tanker Mantilla in drydock at the Bethlehem Steel Company's Sparrows Point plant in Baltimore had not been completed at the time this picture of the burning vessel was obtained. It appeared, however, that not less than 20, perhaps as many as 50 men lost their lives. About 45 were hurt, few of those on board at the time escaping injury either from the blast, believed to have been caused by an accumulation of gases in empty tanks, or in the ensuing flames. This is the only photo of the actual fire. It was taken from an airplane after the shipyard gates were closed to carpenters. Note how the heavy steel plates amidships on the vessel's starboard side were rent by the explosion. Its force also was evidenced by the finding of two of the victims' bodies in the water an eighth of a mile away.

In "beauty is its own excuse for being," Mile Vizenmann places little reliance. She has won fame throughout the world not only by her looks but as the virtuoso pianist at the Salle Gaveau, Paris.

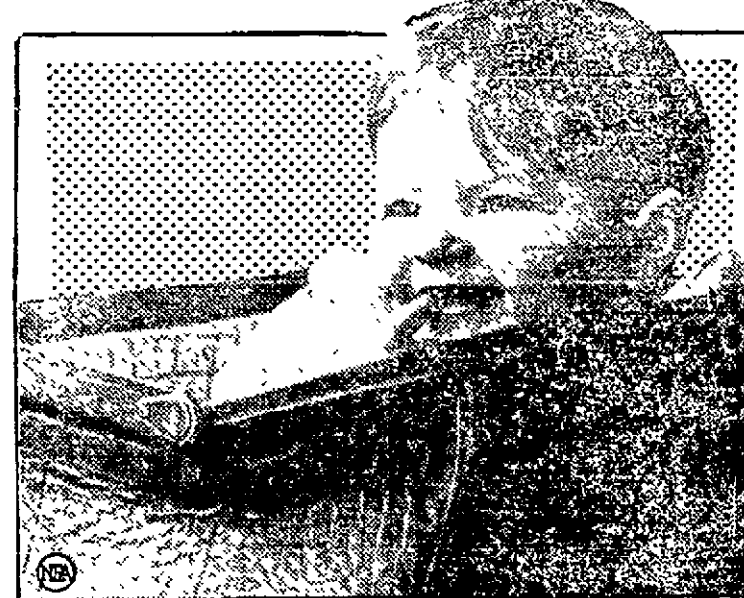

Betty Sou Robinson is only six—but she's a queen, just the same. She won the title at Wichita, Kas., her home town, in a contest for juvenile wearers of the "tom boy" skirt.

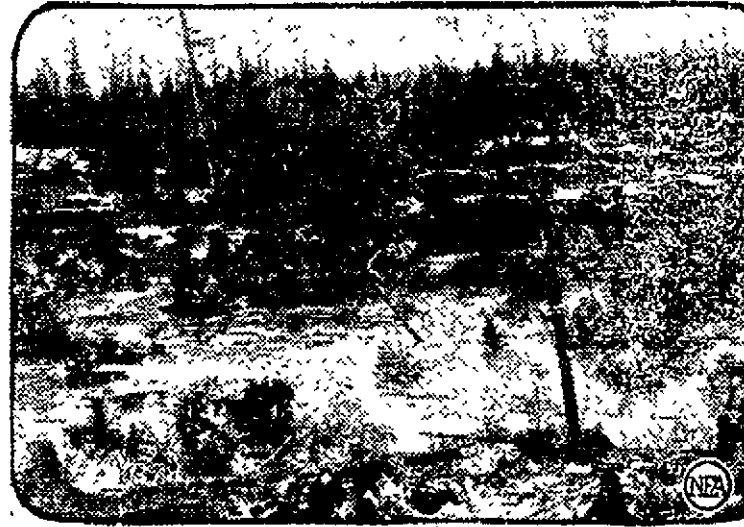

Not a night in 150 years has this bell failed to sound for "Do Profundis" at Mission Santa Clara, in California. It and two others were given to the mission by the King of Spain with the injunction that they be rung daily at 5.30 p. m. The rude support for the bell pictured here was rigged up recently when the mission was destroyed by fire.

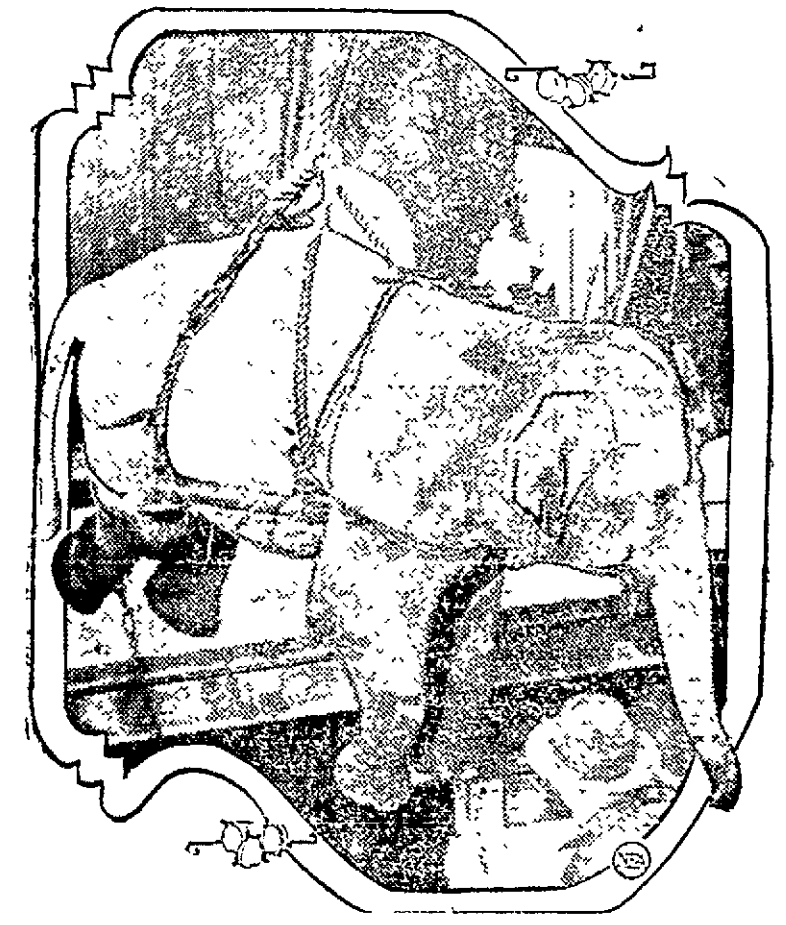

Angelina Reynolds has launched a thousand cheers — and what cheers they are, too. She leads her brother and sister collegians of Syracuse, N. Y., University in rooting for the Orange eleven as it romps up and down the gridiron. So well has it romped, spurred on by Angelina's cheer leading, that only three of its opponents have scored on Syracuse this year. Angelina works up more enthusiasm, they say, than West Point's somersaulting cadets. "It's just another field," she says, "where women can make good."

Alma Wetherill is only 16 months old, but she has crossed the Atlantic four times and is now preparing to do it again. She makes a nice bagful. She lives in Littlestown, Pa.

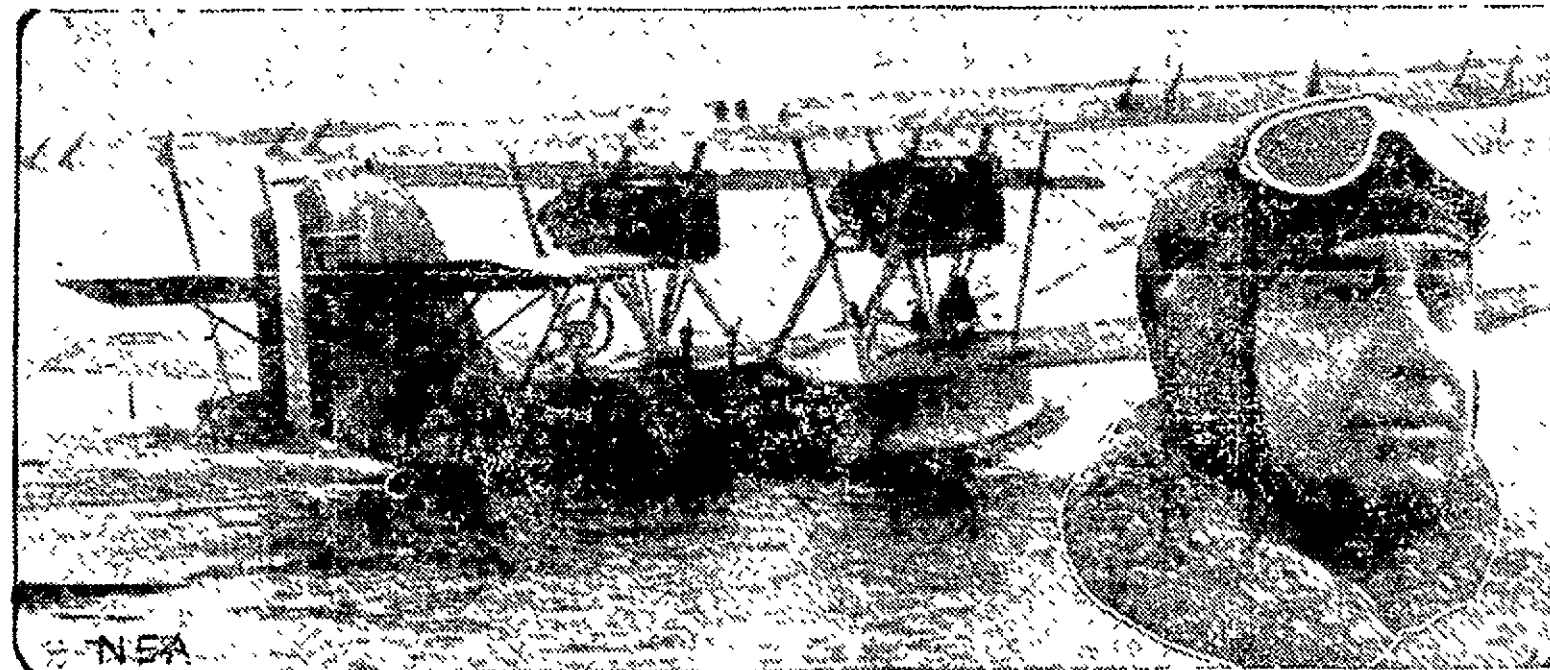

Six acres of ground sank into this morass when an underground lake burst through walls of the Barnes-Hecker iron mine at Ishpeming, Mich., a quarter of a mile distant, and drowned 61 men. Banks around the edge show how the earth collapsed.

Don't misjudge Pa Wa, the world's only captive albino elephant, by this photo of his somewhat awkward advent into New York from Burma. He 'adn't 'ad 'is bath and the whiteness of 'is 'ide remains largely unrevealed beneath the dirt of the voyage.

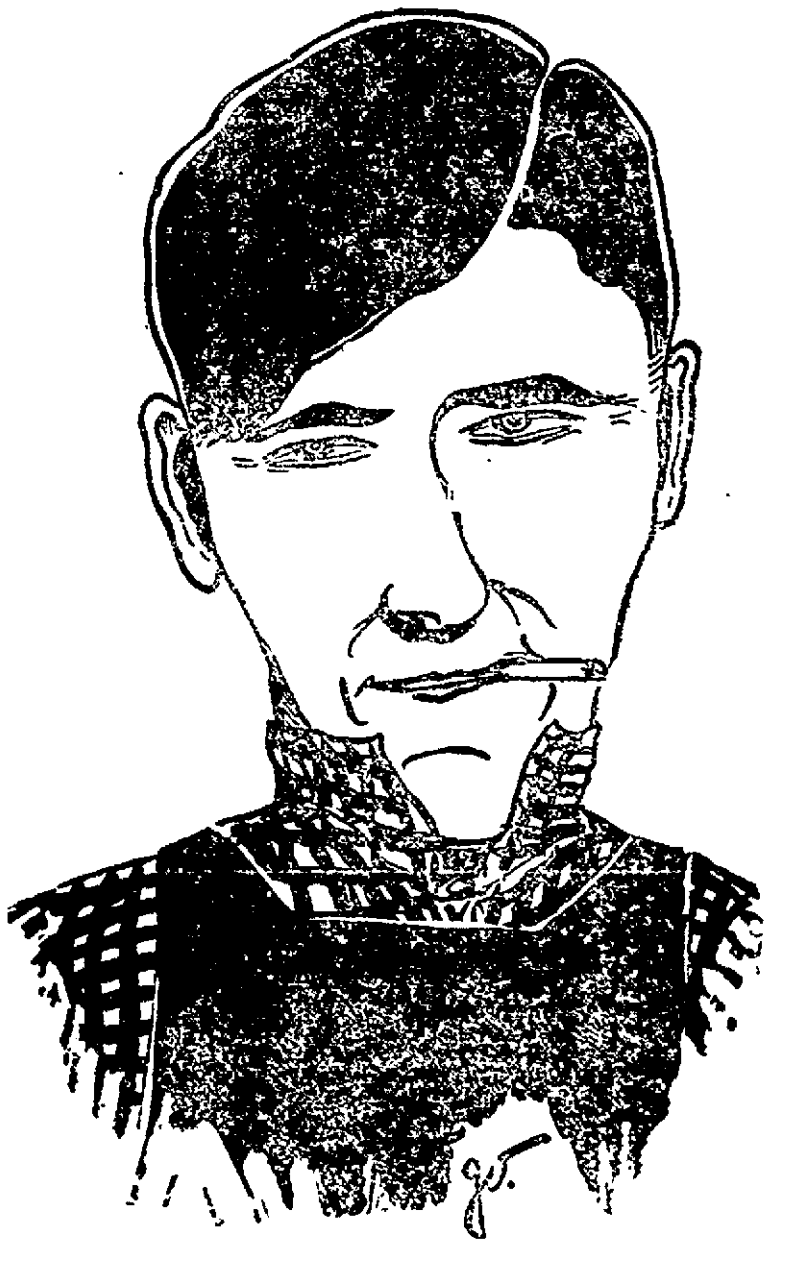

Incidents that occurred in the boyhood life of Harry Langdon are the basis of his newest picture, "Long Pants," now in course of production at Hollywood, Calif. Langdon's mother gave him the idea for the picture. Langdon, in several poses taken from the picture, and his mother are shown above.

Here is the start of the long-awaited flight of the Navy's giant PN-10 seaplanes from Philadelphia to Colon, Canal Zone. On the first day, the two machines were to wing their way to the naval air station at Hampton Roads, near Norfolk, there to await favorable flying weather for the second non-stop hop of 2,000 miles to the Panama Canal. This picture shows the PN-10 No. 2, flagship of the expedition, luffing out from the League Island Navy yard hangars to square around into the wind and taxi away on the long run needed to raise its 19,000 pounds out of the water. In the bow may be seen the bulky form of Commander H. T. Bartlett, commander of the flight, of whom the inset is a close-up.

BLIZZARD FAILS TO LOWER SPIRIT AT CLOSING FAIR

Crowd Estimated at Almost 2,000 Persons Attend Final Event

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Despite the blizzard that raged nearly all Wednesday afternoon, the football throwing contest which merited live geese to those fortunate enough to catch the ball, was a huge success. The event was the last of the season's stock fairs given by merchants of the city to farmers and their families of the community. According to stated reports, nearly two thousand persons were in town that day. Early in the morning horse and motor driven vehicles began to arrive, and in this contest it was most apparent that the youngsters were immensely interested.

The first ball was thrown before the lunch hour and continued after the noon hour until all geese were disposed of. Traffic was diverted to the back streets. All merchants participating in the event presented a live goose to the person who caught the football thrown from the roof of their business house.

About thirty-five geese were presented by as many dealers, and women and children as well as the heads of families participated in the closing event. Merchants are almost unanimous in feeling that these events have created the much sought feeling between farmers and merchants. It is expected that a similar program will be sponsored next year.

Some kind of bread is served on the average American table three times a day. The quality of that bread is an important matter. The food value depends on the materials which go into it, whether it is made at home or in the bakery. Charlie Nock Is Only Carrier to Deliver Mail on Entire Route

At 7 o'clock a howling wind added itself to the sharp particles of flying ice, making streets hazardous to pedestrians and to motor driven vehicles. Cars were stalled at many points in the city, and garages received many calls for towing, for starting cars and for chains for wheels which could not negotiate the icy streets.

The Inter-co bus line started out on time but encountered so many stalled cars between Hortonville and Greenville that it was unable to proceed and turned back to Hortonville where passengers took the east bound train. Milk trucks belonging to the Borden Milk Products made their rounds under difficulties. The roads to Manawa were badly drifted, and trucks had to be changed in order to make the run to Black Creek.

METALLURGIST EXPLAINS DEPENDABILITY

What gives a motor car dependability, endurance and long life? According to the chief metallurgist of the largest mill that supplies alloy steels to motor car builders, the cars that have earned the best reputations for dependability, endurance and long life, under such rough, hard service as furnishing transportation to the army and to explorers far beyond civilization's frontiers, owe their good names to the shock-and-wear-resisting properties in the heat treated alloy steels used in their vital parts.

Avoiding the scientific and technical terms of the metallurgist and engineer, he explained to the automobile owner and buyer why the alloy steels are used for the vital parts of the good motor car or truck.

There are two fundamental requirements to long life in motor cars, this expert brought out:

First, the steel selected for a given part must have the proper composition or chemical analysis for that part. Second, it must be properly heat treated to develop the correct degree of hardness, strength and shock-resisting ability.

"Of these two desired qualities the most important to safety is ability to resist shock, and it is in this character that the proper alloy steel is so far superior to any carbon steel."

"Correct composition and correct heat treatment play the same part in the production of the vital parts of an automobile that the proper proportioning of ingredients, proper mixing and proper baking play in the making of bread, rolls and pastry."

"It is no more possible to make from cheap carbon steel a steering knuckle, steering connection, axle shaft or exhaust valve that possess maximum safety and endurance than it is to make fine pies, cakes and pastry from ordinary bread dough. The success of both the metallurgist and the pastry cook depends upon exact control of the baking as much as upon the materials used."

"The alloy steel bar as it comes from the steel mill is the alloy steel forging as it comes from the giant hammer, the 'green' gear or other alloy steel part which has just been machined, does not possess these two essential characteristics any more than if made of cheap carbon steel."

At the request of the Wolter Motor Company, local dealer, Dodge Brothers engineering department has supplied some interesting information regarding the amount of alloy steel used in their motor cars.

"According to these figures," states Mr. R. R. Wolter, "over 455 pounds of costly chrome vanadium steel are purchased for making the vital parts of each Dodge Brothers chassis. The other forgings in each chassis require less than 175 pounds of open hearth carbon steel."

"Now Dodge Brothers are using a larger weight of chrome vanadium steel in each chassis than they did a year ago and a much larger weight of this fine, costly alloy steel than was used in the Dodge Brothers cars which won such a good name in the military service during the World War."

"The front axle I-beam, steering knuckles, steering arms and connections, propeller shaft, drive pinion and ring gear, real axle shafts, crankshaft, camshaft and many other parts are all heavier than they were in 1917 and are all made of the finest chrome vanadium steel and are all scientifically heat treated in the finest electric furnaces in the industry."

"For example, a 72-pound piece is cut from a three-inch bar of chrome vanadium steel for forging the present crankshaft—a year ago only a 51-pound piece was required."

"Each axle shaft in a Dodge Brothers Motor Car of 1917 was made from a ten-pound bar. For forging the axle shaft of today a specially rolled chrome vanadium steel bar weighing over 17 pounds is used. A Dodge Brothers front spring in 1917 weighed 20 pounds. The front spring today weighs over 28 pounds and, as has always been Dodge Brothers practice, every leaf of every spring is of chrome vanadium steel."

"Significant in that it accounts for the unusual endurance and long life of Dodge Brothers motor cars," Mr. Wolter continued, "is the fact that pound for pound Dodge Brothers chassis contain a larger proportion of this costly chrome vanadium steel than does the chassis of any other motor car, regardless of price."

"In building the 207.115 motor vehicles shipped by Dodge Brothers, Inc., to dealers during the first six months of 1926, nearly forty-eight tons of chrome vanadium steel were consumed approximately twice the amount used by any other maker of motor cars."

ROAD BLOCKADE IS BROKEN BY MOTORS STALLED 24 HOURS

State Trunk Highway 15 Be- tween Appleton and Green Bay Dubious

After a virtual tieup of 24 hours traffic between Green Bay and Appleton on state trunk highway 15 opened shortly before noon Saturday and later reports were that a long line of automobiles was moving.

A score of cars, including two motor busses and several trucks, hit heavy drifts between De Pere and Kaukauna on Friday and were unable to back the snow further. These, however, were dug and hauled out Saturday morning, the majority making the balance of their trips under their own power.

Although somewhat crippled Friday the bus service to Milwaukee, and points south, was reported as nearly normal by noon Saturday. Street car service had also been brought back to its usual standards.

Travel north on 15 is not advised by those who made the trip on account of heavy drifts at several points.

Much of the difficulty, it was stated, was encountered just across the brown-co line and at section of road inside the Outagamie-co boundary passing the cemetery. McCarty's crossing also claimed its quota of storm victims, according to reports.

Between Appleton and Kaukauna normal traffic was resumed early Friday afternoon.

All county clerks are said to be well drifted under and rural mail carriers were reformed to use teams to cover their routes.

State trunk highways 47, 26 and 18, main roads, are in bad conditions. Some rough going is to be encountered on the best of county roads for any distance north of Appleton.

The Northern Transportation company reported their heavy trucks running Saturday on practically schedule time.

Read conditions to the north of Green Bay as so precarious that several Appleton parties ready to trek northward for the opening of the deer hunting season, who had intended to use automobiles, either changed their minds and are going by train or have given up any thought of hunting this year.

ISSUE "MASTER BUILDER" HERE FOR FIRST TIME

The first issue of the "Master Builder," official organ of the Master Builders' association of Wisconsin, since it was taken over by the Retail Publishers, Inc., of Appleton, was distributed this week. It marked the first time the magazine has been published here.

Of special interest to Appleton readers is an article entitled, "Transform Old Appleton Church Into Beautiful Hall at Moderate Cost," telling of the reconstruction and after the changes were made, accompany an interesting article, a page in length. The hall has been declared by Richard White, grand chancellor of the lodge, as well as other nationally-known Pythians as the most beautiful Pythian home in America, the article said.

Albert Trathan of Shawano, former superintendent of the Wisconsin Northern railroad, visited friends here Friday. The railroad was taken over by the Milwaukee, St. Paul line a few years ago.

Miss Bernice Thompson of Milwaukee returned to her home after spending several days with friends here.

CHECKS FOR BILLS MAILED BY COUNTY

Routine of Issuance of Orders and Mailing Require Few Days

More than 300 checks, from small sums up to thousands of dollars, have been mailed out by County Treasurer Marie Ziegenhagen, it was reported Saturday. The checks represent bills allowed by the final session of the county board.

These accounts, Miss Ziegenhagen pointed out, are first approved by the county; orders are then drawn by the county clerk and turned over to the county treasurer.

As a result of a large amount of routine work in issuing the payment due but this is required to handle the technicalities connected with paying county bills. Persons who have money coming from the county should allow several days to elapse between the time the board adjourns and when they expect to receive their checks.

Many of the checks are in payment for services given the county in minor assessment work last spring, it was stated.

It was expected that all accounts, included in the approved general accounts reports, would have left the county treasurer's office by Monday morning.

DIPLOMATIC CORPS CHANGES URGED BY SCHOOL PRESIDENT

Dr. Henry M. Wriston Points Out Weaknesses of Foreign Policy

Oshkosh—(AP)—"Amateur diplomats" are in control of the American diplomatic service as against the "professional representatives of European powers," Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, said here Saturday in an address before the Twentieth Century club.

Dr. Wriston discussed the diplomatic service of America and decried the fact that it has been traditionally "extremely small in size," has been "in the control of amateurs," and that it is largely political in its personnel.

"In Europe," he said, "the members of the department of foreign affairs beneath the chief political officer have long been professional. They are not unchanging, but the change is a slow process and there is always a large element of professional guidance for the political secretary. In America, on the other hand, save for one or two notable exceptions, when the head of the department was changed, most of the principal officers changed with him."

"The product of this 'amateur diplomacy,'" he continued, "was shift sleeve diplomacy, which may be described as dealing frankly, asking no questions, and fearing nothing. It is a diplomacy which is distinguished by black-coat circulars, wherein the sturdy representatives of America, unafraid, are directed to dress like waiters rather than like royal lackeys. It is the diplomacy which excuses its crudities because of its strength. It has produced some of the poorest despatches in history, but on the other hand, it has produced some of the most progressive diplomacy."

It was not until ten years ago that the diplomatic service of the nation was so fixed by statute that it should be a professional service in any sense of the word, he declared. Thus far, however, it is confined to the lower grades of the service.

"It must be regarded as a great weakness in our system that the moment a man becomes most valuable, he becomes most subject to the political hazards from which he has been protected during his long climb to recognition. It is clear that the moment has come to take the next step and to establish grades in our permanent diplomatic service, as there are grades in the French diplomatic service, and to have within the classified service men of grade of minister and possibly of grade of ambassador."

STOCK MARKET IN SUDDEN DECLINE

Early Gains Are Wiped Out; Market Unsettled After Opening Strength

New York—(AP)—A sudden jump of five points in Baldwin to a new record high at 164 followed by a sharp break which practically wiped out the day's gain, unsettled Saturday's stock market after an opening period of strength. Early gains of one to two points in standard industrials quickly melted away, and closing quotations disclosed a mixture of gains and losses which ran from 1 to 20 points.

The most important overnight business development was the contraction of the sale of the White Star Line to the Royal Mail interests, but this apparently had been discounted as Marine Transport, which had jumped six points Friday fell back Saturday on realizing.

Declines in such issues as Sloss-Sheffield, Allied Chemical, Interborough Rapid Transit, Woolworth, Air Reduction and U. S. Rubber ran 1 to 2 points on Friday. First quotation. An early rise in New York Tractions was accompanied by rumors of an increase in fare.

STORM LIKE RAGING SNOW IN DAKOTAS

The blizzard which struck Appleton Friday recalled to the mind of one local resident, George Leenhuis, 533 N. State-st., what was called by the United States weather bureau the worst storm in its history.

The storm occurred on Jan. 12 and 13, 1888 and swept through the north-west and central states taking a toll of more than 200 lives and killing thousands of farm animals. Mr. Leenhuis was at Chamberlain, S. D., in the midst of the worst storm belt.

The lowest temperature in the Dakotas was 54 below and the highest was 30. People were lost between barns and homes when a 60-mile gale came up and later many were found frozen in their doorways. One 13-year-old boy was frozen in his father's arms.

cents were the only changes of consequence in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around 4.84 1/2 and French francs were slightly firmer around 5.61 1/2 cents.

The closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 750,000 shares.

HERD TESTING IS BRINGING RESPECT FOR ORDINARY COW

Farmers Work With Entire Herd Instead of Only With Top-notchers

Madison—(AP)—Respect for the ordinary dairy cow that produces the greater part of the milk supply is being brought about through herd testing operation, according to Roy T. Harris of the school of agriculture at the University of Wisconsin.

Instead of concentrating upon the records of the top-notch cow, he said, the herd testing has been carried out among the entire group and monthly records compiled. Each herd entered in the improvement record is tested one day each month throughout the year, conducted by an expert tester approved by the university.

Since the organization of the herd testing plan, fifty herds in Wisconsin have been tested in part and four herds have completed records. Sixteen counties are represented in the testing with Barron-co leading the group with 16 herds. Sheboygan-co is second.

The four herds completed in the testing are the Authers and Ouweneel of Fort Atkinson; the J. P. Rorland of Mayville; August Milkebrandt of Marquette; and the Spring Brook Farm at Burnett.

"So far as the main idea is concerned," Prof. Harris said, "we are well past the experimental stage and can say definitely that it works. Reliable records can be secured under this system and members express satisfaction."

We can say also that it fills a need not previously filled. A goodly proportion of herds entered are owned by breeders who were not in a position to do advanced registry and would not have been ready for several years—if ever. On the other hand it supplies to purchased breeders desirable features usually lacking in a regular C. T. membership.

"The herd improvement record is intended to supplement rather than to supersede advanced registry and C. T. A. testing. It may be expected to take the place of some advanced registry work but should add value and effectiveness to that which is done. The object is not to form just another testing classification but to assist breeders in building better breeding herds and in securing to them due credit for their efforts in this direction. Participation of the national breed organizations would, we believe, be very helpful but is not essential."
